Ginger. When you learned to walk, Playing, jumping, laughing. You always got there first. I was just a step behind you. When you cooked mud pies Banging pots in the playhouse, Water puddles and orange trees. I splashed and piddled behind you. When you started wearing makeup I looked like a clown. But, you tried to teach me how. Since I was right behind you. When you learned to sew, Dressing up our dollies. Making throw pillows. I was the seamstress behind you. When you planted the flowers, Dodging wasps and petting kitties. Garden dreams come true. I ran in the yard behind you. Then, Grandma left us and we grew up. Driving cars and dating boys. Lots of work and more work too. I wish I had been much, much farther behind you. Now you have gone to Heaven too. You always got to go to Grandma's first. But you better save a spot for me, I still love you and will always be behind you. Leann
