Marty Flynn posted:

Ryan was such a good looking guy and he always reminded me of a model for all men. A tall slim built guy that stood out in a crowd with a great personality. As most young guys twenty years old, he probably wasn't afraid of many things that life presents, even death. This is not to say that he wanted to die, but that he wasn't afraid. I personally do not feel sorry for Ryan because I know that he is free from all of this world of risk and challenges. I do feel sorry for the people he left behind that loved him so much, especially his Mom, Dad, Brother and Sister. I know that their hearts hurt with the large void without him. May God bless you and time will ease the hurt. I love you all, Marty
